Sharmistha Agasthi
Managing Director of
The Pansari Group

FMCG are the fast-moving consumer goods that are produced and distributed for quick consumption, are high in demand, and are highly accessible due to their affordable prices. Therefore, these products have huge turnovers as it is produced and bought in huge masses and sold in the retail market at very affordable and competitive rates. Consequently, this sector holds a key position in determining the national GDP's economy, making it the fourth-largest sector of the Indian economy.

The FMCG industry has witnessed significant ups and downs in the pandemic. Markets and industries have been trying hard to meet new demands and restrictions and are trying to survive the deep waters. Hence, the hard-hitting lack of revenue has forced these industries to try to incorporate new strategies to thrive in the post-covid era.
